CENTRE COUNTY TEACHERS

Their Fifty-Eighth Annual Institute Is in Session in the Court House

LARGE ATTENDANCE.

An Interesting Program with Eloquent Instructors—A Full Turnout of Teachers—Complete Report of Proceedings.

INSTITUTE OPENED MONDAY

On account of a wreck and delays on all the railroads the registration of the teachers was not complete Monday until some time after the hour for the afternoon session had arrived. There is a noticeable preponderance of lady teachers. This is possibly as it should be, at least, many of the young gentlemen of the town say it is all right. They certainly give tone and add beauty to the assemblage.

Prof. Gramley called the institute to order at 2:05. The music is in charge of Prof. Meyer and that assures a fine musical program for the week. Prof. Gramley in his opening address said it was a matter to be thankful to Providence in that the ranks of the profession in the county remains unbroken by death in the past year.

Miss Maud Willis, of Lock Haven, brought words of greeting to the institute from the Normal, many of our Centre county teachers being graduates of this institution. The greeting was a happy one and Miss Willis met with a hearty reception.

Her analysis of the little poem "The Painter of Seville," one could have wished it had been simply the recitation of the poem, but the lady's analysis added increased beauty to the little gem because of her clear conception of the piece. She is a finished reader and held, while tearing to pieces the flower, petal by petal, the attention of her audience.

"How Henry Blake Knows", a child's piece was quite a pleasant little poem and well delivered.

A goodly number of our citizens were in attendance and the court house was quite well filled.

Prof. Gramley introduced Dr. Stetson, Supt. of Me. The Dr's talk was humorous, but through it ran a vein of criticism of modern methods to teach and incidentally of the school text book. He advises giving pupils a new sensation, or in other words get them out of the beaten path, the dull routine and hum drum of the early school life. He is entertaining and instructive and speaks with a down east accent which is a sort of sensation and a new one, to the teachers of the county. He would put the children to learning definitions and gems, let him go on developing his memory and thus storing his mind. Education is a process of continued accumulation and suiting the instruction to the powers to be developed.

The Dr's talk was excellent and well received.

TUESDAY MORNING.

Prof. C. D. Koch of Philipsburg was the first instructor of the morning and read his lecture from manuscript because of the fact that he would be compelled to quote liberally from many authors, his own studies had not been sufficient to justify him in doing away with the work of others. Prof. Koch's lecture was largely technical, but technical language could not conceal the lecturers points. In fact dealing as he did with muscular or motor action, technical language cannot be avoided.

The subject is one of great difficulty and to the ordinary country school teacher would seem almost impossible. How shall teachers of thirty or forty little urchins teach the proper method of motor or muscular development, when the teacher does not know the first principles of the theories advanced by the various authorities on the subject? This subject is something like Dr Stetson's descriptions of certain psychycologies, "Two thirds of the book is absolutely useless and the other third should not have been written."

This is no reflection on Prof. Koch or his subject, its importance can not be overestimated and his work this morning evidenced study, research and an undoubted interest in the subject. He is a bright, modest earnest young man and met with a cordial reception from his fellow teachers.

Dr. Stetson occupied the second period of the morning. In reply to a question of one of the teachers as to what should be done with a child who is "born short." He would take the child out privately and talk to him, be content with efforts and do not bother about results. All children should take the common school studies but we should be satisfied with 74 percent. His talk on reading and the use of words was most entertaining. We must know what these words we are using mean; we should know their ancestry, where they come from originally. The Dr's short pithy sentences, pregnant with good common sense and full of thought, command the attention of the teachers in a manner which shows he is doing a good work. Homely illustrations and anecdotes clinch his points without his assuming to enforce their particular importance.

Miss Willis occupied the last period of the forenoon session on the subject of reading and incidentally gave a couple of recitations. The lady is thoroughly practical in her work and does not give the teacher a whole bundle of jumbled theories ranging in age from the latest born to the hoary headed and discarded mossback of centuries ago. There are as many systems or methods as there are authors and all have their merits, but one must not confine herself to what is found simply in one text book or system of text books. The good must be selected from all with which one comes in contact and the child must be drilled to deal on a stereotyped lesson. From pictures, books and nature the teacher should derive ideas which will assist in fixing the interest of the smaller children. Word and sentence building is absolutely necessary at all times and the inculcation of the love of the beautiful is of no doubtful importance. Every beautiful thought suggested assists in the make up of a beautiful character.

The character of the work so far done by the instructors is so practical in all its details that the teachers have commented on it.

It is absolute folly to dose two or three hundred teachers with a lot of theories.

Institute then adjourned to meet at 1:30 in the afternoon.

TUESDAY AFTERNOON SESSION.

The first period of the session began with a recitation of the "Bobolink" by Miss Willis. The piece is one which shows the full register of the lady's voice at least, in the higher notes, and at the same time the technique or mechanical development she has attained. "Salvator" was splendidly dramatically rendered and with the sole purpose of showing that a picture vivid and life-breathing, may be presented through words, that the reader if cultivated can have before him the living scene.

Dr. Stetson followed with an illustrated lecture on "Millet," the great French painter, beginning with Markham's poem "The Man Behind the Hoe," a study of one of Millet's horrible figures, and the only one the Dr. presented unless the picture of the artist himself may be so called. Throughout his whole discourse, every picture was analyzed from a standpoint of the lover of art. there ran the thought that each picture represented a phaze, a character or a circumstance in the life of the figures, "The Angelus" was to the Dr. the perfection of religious teaching, inbred for centuries in the peasant child of sunny France, and recalls to the doubtless the sad history of the Acadian people much of which is connected with his state and with the descendants of whom he has come in contact in the forests of the St. Johns river.

Truly "The Angelus" is as great and beautiful as "The Toiler" is horrible and uncanny.

The last picture shown by the Dr. was Horenden's "Severing Home Ties," or as the Dr. better puts it "A Pennsylvania kitchen" located near Norristown. He wished that he could claim the scene as his home State and indeed had he done so there would have been few if any in the audience to have disputed the claim—the writer surely not. This picture had held him enhanced at the Worlds Fair in Chicago and among all the works of art it attracted the most attention.

Our ignorance of this beautiful scene brought to our mind the fact that possibly the greatest American sculpturist was a Centre Co. girl—Vinnie Ream born, we think, in Penns valley, possibly about Spring Mills.

Miss Willis had been persuaded to remain over until Wednesday and she was called into service with a request for Sally

STATE WINS FROM DICKINSON

In a Hard Fought Battle on the Gridiron

THE SCORE WAS 11--0

Before a Crowd of Nearly Five Thousand People the Warriors of the Pig Skin Push Each other Up and Down the Field.

OUR BOYS WERE WELL PLEASED.

We've got a team that's sure to win,
Hurrah! Hurrah!
Just as soon as the game begins,
Hurrah! Hurrah!
Oh, you can tell by the way they play
That it's bound to be State's day.
Give a long loud yell for Pennsylvania State.

So sang the 800 State College rooters as they marched, headed by their band, to the Seminary Athletic field Williamsport Saturday, where the State football team and Dickinson's warriors of the pig skin were to do battle for the championship.

To be on time and secure the best seats the cohorts of Pennsylvania started early and were on hand when the gates opened. Last year State took the north side of the field and gave Dickinson the south side. This year they reversed, State taking the south side and Dickinson the north. State's band was stationed in the southwest corner and Dickinson's band, the Berwick band, occupied the northeast corner.

It was after two o'clock when the 300 Dickinson rooters, headed by the Berwick band, appeared on the scene and marched around the east end of the field to the place its band occupied during the game. As the Dickinson column appeared State's rooters showed in unison:

Rah! Rah! Rah!
State! State! State!
Dickinson! Dickinson!

Having thus greeted their rivals they broke forth into one of their songs:

By this time the big grand stand was a mass of color, the bleachers were packed with happy and excited rooters and fully 4,500 people were around the fences surrounding the side lines.

A new feature to Williamsport was the erection at the eastern end of the Athletic field of a score board which showed at all times the score, who had the ball, what down it was and how many yards to gain.

Like last year's game between these two teams the result furnished a surprise to the local football sharps Last year State was looked upon as a sure winner but she lost. This year the records of the season indicated Dickinson as the winner, but when they came together State showed a superiority in all departments and won by a score of 11 to 0.

The big crowd was intensely enthusiastic and when McGee was sent over for the first touchdown it burst forth in cheers and shouts that were heard all over the central portion of the city.

THE GAME.

The game opened with State defending the west goal. McGee received the kickoff and was downed on the 15 yard line. State could not advance the ball and McIlveen punted to the centre of the field where Simpson fumbled and Barr fell on the ball. Yeckley and McIlveen made first down and then Saunders fumbled, but recovered the ball.

THE SECOND HALF.

Kingstine received the kick-off in the second half on the 5 yard line and ran it back 10 yards. Robinson gained first down but Krebbs and Sadler could not gain. Davis punted to McIlveen, who came back to Dickinson's 28-yard line, almost to the point of the kick.

Then State determined to do or die, and do she did. Big Woodward, a former Seminary player, who has been State's best guard, was called upon to open up Dickinson's line and he responded by making holes for the backs through which they plunged time after time and which quickly put them within striking distance. No better work in the guard position has ever been seen in Williamsport. Dickinson's attack found him a stone wall and he was always called upon when third down was reached and always produced the required hole in the red and blue line. Yeckley, McIlveen and McGee carried the ball and the latter went over for the touchdown. Saunders missed the goal. Score—State 5, Dickinson 0.

THE SECOND TOUCHDOWN.

McIlveen brought the kick-off back to the 21-yard line, Yeckley gained 9 yards and Wray, Yeckley and McIlveen made the first down.

Then State went at Dickinson's line with sledge hammer blows that told. Again Woodward opened up holes big enough to drive an ice wagon through and again the backs ploughed through them until the 5-yard line was reached. The referee's whistle for time out was not heard and Yeckley was sent over for a touchdown but it was not allowed. On the next line-up McGee was sent over and Saunders kicked the goal. Score—State 11, Dickinson 0.

Again pandemoninm broke loose on the State side of the field and when it quieted down the State rooters sang: in the sweet by and by.

The line up and summary follows:

Dickinson		State
Krebs (Cramer)	Left End.	Barr
Messner	Left Guard	White
H. Smith	Center	Dunn
Harry	Right Guard.	(Woodward) Wray
Davis (Shives)	Right Tackle	R. Smith
Cortelyou	Right End	Morehead
Simpson	Quarter-back.	Saunders
Robinson	Left Half.	Yeckley
Klingstein (Rick)	Right Half.	McIlveen
Sadler	Fullback.	McGee

Touchdowns—McGee, 2. Goal from touchdown—Saunders, 1. Total Score—State, 11; Dickinson, 0. Referee—Edward Young, Cornell. Umpire—Michael Bennett, University of Pennsylvania. Timers—Stuart, State; Hoffman, Dickinson. Time of halves—30 and 25 minutes.

Wedding at Penn Hall.

A very pretty wedding occurred at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Bitner in Penn Hall at high noon on Thursday last. Their daughter, Jennie Bitner was at that time united in marriage with Mr. Paul Swab. As the beautiful strains of Lohengren's wedding march as played by Miss Dora Meyer of this place, floated through the rooms, the happy couple presented themselves before the Rev. R. F. Fetterolf, and were soon pronounced man and wife, congratulations were then showered upon them by the thirty or more invited guests who were present.

The bride was attired in soft white shimmering silk and carried a huge bouquet of white chrysanthemums, and looked very pretty. The brides-maid was Ruth Swab sister of the groom, the best man was Mr. Jacob Bitner brother of the bride. The groom looked very manly in his suit of conventional black. A sumptuous wedding feast was served, and partaken of by a large gathering. The bride was the recipient of many handsome and costly gifts. Those who were present from Bellefonte were, Mrs. Philip Meyer and daughter, Miss Dora, and Mr. and Mrs. James Coburn.

Miss Nora Ammerman.

Miss Nora Ammerman died at the family home, at Tyrone at 1.30 o'clock Saturday morning. She had been ill only about two weeks, and suffered from heart affliction.

The mother of Miss Nora died some years ago, since when she had been housekeeper for her father, Joseph Ammerman. She was a native of Unionville, Centre county, but the family had resided in Tyrone about thirty-one years. She was a member of the First Presbyterian church of Tyrone, and was also a charter member of the Woman's Relief Corps No. 9, connected with the local Grand Army post.

Besides her father, the deceased is survived by three brothers, viz: W. J. Ammerman, of Clearfield and H. S. and P. O. Ammerman, of Tyrone.

The funeral was held last Monday afternoon. Services at the home at 2 o'clock by Rev. Geo. T. Gunter. Interment at Tyrone cemetery.

LOST AT SEA!

United States Supply Ship Culgoa Cuts Down a Lumber Schooner.

4 PERSONS DROWNED

They Were the Captain, His Wife and Two Seamen, and a Like Number Being Saved.

SCHOONER WAS OUT FROM BARNEGAT

New York, November 12.—Captain Robert Walton, his wife and two seamen lost their life Wednesday off Barnegat light, when the United States supply ship Culgoa cut down the Norfolk lumber schooner Wilson and Hunting. Four members of the crew, the mate, cook and two seamen, were rescued by the Culgoa and were brought here Friday.

The accident occurred according to the survivors about 7 o'clock in the evening. The schooner was ten miles west of Barnegat, taking off shore, when she was struck by the Culgoa, which was making for New York. The steel bow of the supply ship and cut half way through, throwing the smaller vessel on her beam ends. The Culgoa kept on a full speed with the intention of keeping the schooner fastened to its bow until the crew could be rescued. The gaping hole in the side of the sailing vessel was so large, however, that it slid to one side. A boat from the Culgoa rescued four men. No others were seen and it is thought Captain Walton went below after his wife when the collision occurred and that they were both drowned, with two seamen who were in their bunks. The Culgoa stayed by the capsized schooner all night and at daylight on Thursday morning lowered two more boats, but the sailors were unable to discover signs of life on the wreck. The schooner is now believed to be drifting about near Barnegat. The supply ship anchored off Tomkinsville Friday night and landed the survivors Her booms are badly damaged.

Let Us Give Thanks.

Governor Pennypacker Thursday issued the following Thanksgiving proclamation:

"In the name and by the authority of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, Proclamation:—

"Giving heed to an observance of ancient establishment and long continuance, more conducive to the welfare of the people, I, Samuel Whittaker Pennypacker, Governor of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, do hereby set apart Thursday, November 24th, as a day for offering thanks and praise unto the Lord for his manifold blessings and mercies. He hath delivered us out of the hands of our enemies; He hath given light to them that sit in darkness.; He hath filled the hungry with good things; He hath scattered the proud in the imagination of their hearts; He hath so blessed the earth that it has brought forth its increase; He hath defended us from perils and dangers innumberable; He hath not remembered against us our offenses, nor the offenses o our forefathers.

"Let us then gather together in our homes, meeting houses and churches and send forth praise unto Him, not only with our lips, but in our lives, and let us further remember to give help to the needy and succor to the poor and afflicted.

"Given under my hand and the great seal of the State, at the city of Harrisburg this tenth day of November, in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and four and of the Commonwealth the one hundred and twenty-ninth.

"By the Governor,
"FRANK M. FULLER,
"Sec. of the Commonwealth,
"SAMUEL W. PENNYPACKER.

Mr. J. C. F. Motz who is engaged in the Lumber business at Monessen, Pa., accompanied by his mother Mrs. Amanda Motz of Woodward passed through Bellefonte Wednesday on his way home to the above mentioned place. Mr. Motz in company with T. W. Nale, Dr. Bigger, Prof. Himerick and R. G. Agnew had been through Centre County in quest of game and were returning home loaded to the eyes with rabbits squirrels, birds etc, in fact, every thing that would make pot-pie.

GOLDEN WEDDING ANNIVERSARY.

Mr. and Mrs. Gottlieb Haag Celebrate the Fiftieth Anniversary of their Wedding.

Monday Gottleib and Kathrine Treyz Haag, surrounded by their hosts of friends, celebrated the Golden Anniversary of their wedding. It was one of those rare events which give added zest to the occasion by reason of their very rarity, but when to a long half century of happy wedded life, may be added the same period of love and respect (for the young couple) of old friends, thrice happy indeed were the youthful old bride and groom.

In the year 1854, to be precise, May 19, 1854 Gottleib Haag then as young and handsome a teuton, as one might wish to see, landed at New York from Wurtemburg. Five days after, rosy cheeked, fresh and innocent Katharine Treyz landed at the some port but from the city of Antwerp.

Nov. 14, 1854, Gottleib Haag and Kathrine Treyz in the County of Schuylkill were united in marriage by Rev. Erhard of the Lutheran Church.

No children blessed the union of Gottlieb and Kathrine, but two were adopted or raised by them John Mulfinger, and Harry Haag.

Rev. Dr. Holloway and Rev. Jno. Wood Jr., assisted at the function of the Golden Wedding. Col. J. L. Spangler was master of ceremonies, and mine host Mosgbarger of the Hotel Haag furnished the feast. Over seventy guests sat down to the spread among those present being the immediate relatives of the bride and groom but all from a distance.

The following is a list of the members of both families present: Philip Haag and wife, Williamsport; Henry Treyz and wife, brother of Mrs. Haag, Cooks Falls, N. Y.; George Treyz and wife, Cooks Falls; Gottlieb Treyz and wife, Fox Eighty New York; a nephew, Henry Montrick, Paterson, N. J.; Julius Moslein and wife, Mrs. Gust Moslein of Sunbury; and Mrs. James Meitzler of Centre Hall.

The bride was dressed elegantly and becomingly in black silk trimmed with lace, while the groom wore the conventional "broadcloth." They greeted their friends in the most cordial manner as only Gottlieb and Kathrine can, a happier or more enjoyable gathering cannot be well imagined.

The time was enlivened by songs and stories and it was all too short for the guests.

The presents were many and valuable consisting of gold, silver and cut glass ware, quilts and a hundred articles, each of intrinsic value and each conveying a sentiment of love and respect. On June 14th of this year Gottleib was 75 years old and on Sept. 6th Kathrine was 76. They are yet hale and hearty and bid fair to live many years.

Mr. Haag has been prominent in the business and political affairs of the County for many years, and it can be truthfully said that no man has more friends or fewer enemies. His wife is a most estimable woman and worthy companion. Fortune has smiled pleasantly on this couple and while they do not rank themselves among the millionaires of the town, Gottlieb's check always goes for the amount he draws and the wolf lingers not by his door.

A Quiet Wedding.

Mr. Frank T. Kerns and Miss Elizabeth F. Nolan, two of Bellefonte's popular young people, surprised their friends on Thursday evening by quietly slipping out to the Lutheran parsonage where at 8 o'clock they were united in holy bonds of wedlock. The ceremony was performed by Rev. H. C. Holloway D. D., pastor of the Lutheran church. Mr. Harry Otto was best man and Miss Mary Nolan, bridesmaid.

The bride is the daughter of the late Jerry Nolan and a very excellent young lady. The groom is head office man for the Penn Chemical company of this place. They expect to go to housekeeping in the McQuistion property on west High street. May their voyage on the sea of matrimony be one of happiness and success.

—Frank Dixon, the great orator, will be here during institute and will deliver his famous lecture on "The Mossback" in the Court House Friday evening November 18. The press report of the lecture at Sylvania, Ga says: For nearly two hours he held his audience spellbound. It is not often we have the opportunity to hear such speakers as Mr. Dixon. His address showed the deep and strong thinker and he handled his vital question with masterly force.

in believing it to be the mate, and the harmless mate, of all the others.

"It hangs just where the settle stood," observed Durbin significantly.

"And just at the point where the cushions invite rest, as the colonel so suggestively puts it in his strange puzzle of a confession," added the district attorney.

"Replace the old seat," ordered the major, "and let us make sure of this."

Ready hands at once grasped it and, with some effort, I own, drew it carefully back into position.

"You see!" quoth Durbin.

We did.

"Devilish!" came from the major's lips. Then with a glance at the ball, which, pushed aside by the seat, now hung over its edge a foot or so from the floor, he added briskly: "The ball has fallen to the full length of the cord. If it were drawn up a little"—

"Wait," I eagerly interposed. "Let me see what I can do with it."

And I dashed back upstairs and into the closet of "The Colonel's Own."

With a single peep down to see if they were still on the watch, I seized the handle, whose position I had made sure of when searching for the spring, and began to turn, when instantly, so quick was the response, the long cord stiffened, and I saw the ball rise into sight above the settle top.

"Stop!" called out the major. "Let go and press the spring again."

I hastened to obey, and, though the back of the settle hid the result from me, I judged from the look and attitude of those below that the old colonel's calculations had been made with great exactness and that the one comfortable seat on the rude and cumbersome bench had been so placed that this leaden weight in descending would at the chosen moment strike the head of him who sat there, inflicting death. That the weight should be made just heavy enough to produce a fatal concussion without damaging the skull was proof of the extreme care with which this subtle apparatus had been contrived. An open wound would have aroused questions, but a mere bruise might readily pass as a result of the victim's violent contact with the furnishings of the hearth toward which the shocked body would naturally topple. The fact that a modern jury had so regarded it shows how justified he was in this expectation.

I was expending my wonder on this and on a new discovery which, with a very decided shock to myself, I had just made in the closet when the command came to turn the handle again and to keep on turning it till it would turn no farther.

I complied, but with a trembling hand, and, though I did not watch the result, the satisfaction I heard expressed below was significant of the celerity and precision with which the weight rose foot by foot to the ceiling and finally slunk snugly and without seeming jar into its lair.

When a few minutes later I rejoined those below I found them all, with eyes directed toward the cornice, searching for the hole through which I had just been looking. It was next to imperceptible, so naturally had it been made to fit in with the shadows of the scrollwork, and even after I had discovered it and pointed it out to them I found difficulty in making them believe that they really looked upon an opening. But, when once convinced of this, the district attorney's remark was significant.

"I am glad that my name is not Moore."

The superintendent made no reply. His eye had caught mine, and he had become very thoughtful.

"One of the two candelabra belonging to the parlor mantel was found lying on that closet floor," he observed. "Somebody has entered there lately, as lately as the day when Mr. Pfeiffer was seated here."

"Pardon me," I impetuously cried. "Mr. Pfeiffer's death is quite explained." And, drawing forward my hand, which up to this moment I had held tight shut behind my back, I slowly unclosed it before their astonished eyes.

A bit of lace lay in my palm, a delicate bit, such as is only worn by women in full dress.

"Where did you find that?" asked the major, with the first show of deep emotion I have ever observed in him.

My agitation was greater than his as I replied:

"In the rough boarding under those drawers. Some woman's arm and hand has preceded mine in stealthy search after that fatal spring. A woman who wore lace, valuable lace."

There was but one woman connected with this affair who rightly answered these conditions. The bride, Veronica Moore!

CHAPTER XXIII.

VERONICA MOORE'S real connection with Mr. Pfeiffer's death—a death which in some inscrutable way had in so short a time led to her own—was an overwhelming surprise to every one of us.

The superintendent, as was natural, recovered first.

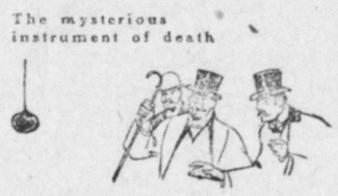
"This throws quite a new light upon the matter," said he. "Now we can understand why Mr. Jeffrey uttered that extraordinary avowal overheard on the bridge: 'She must die!' She had come to him with blood on her hands."

Addressing the major, the district attorney asked when he expected to hear from Denver, adding that it had now become of the first importance to ascertain the exact relations existing between the persons under suspicion and the latest victim of this deadly mechanism.

He had hardly ceased speaking when an officer appeared with a telegram in his hand. This the major eagerly took, and, noting that it was in cipher, read it by means of the code he carried in his pocket. Translated, it ran thus:

"Result of open inquiry in Denver: 'Three brothers Pfeiffer, all well thought of, but plain in their ways and eccentric. One doing business in Denver; died June, '97. One perished in

The mysterious instrument of death



Klondike, October, same year; and one, by name Wallace, died suddenly three months since in Washington.

"Nothing further gained by secret inquiry in this place."

"Result of open inquiry in Owosso:

"A man named Pfeiffer kept a store in Owosso during the time V. M. attended school there. He was one of three brothers, home Denver, name Wallace. Simultaneously with V. M.'s leaving school P. broke up business and at instigation of his brother William, who accompanied him, went to the Klondike. No especial relation between may also this same P. ever noted. V. M. once heard to laugh at his awkward ways."

"Result of secret inquiry in Owosso:

"V. M. very intimate with schoolmate who has since died. Often rode together; once gone a long time. This was just before V. M. left school for good. Date same as that on which a marriage occurred in a town twenty miles distant. Bride, Antoinette Moore; groom, W. Pfeiffer of Denver; witness, young girl with red hair. Schoolmate had red hair. Had V. M. a middle initial, and was that initial A.?"

We all looked at each other. This last question was one none of us could answer.

"Go for Mr. Jeffrey at once," ordered the major, "and let another one of you bring Miss Tuttle. No word to either of what has occurred and no hint of their possible meeting here."

It fell to me to fetch Miss Tuttle. I was glad of this, as it gave me a few minutes by myself in which to compose my mind and adjust my thoughts to the new conditions opened up by the amazing facts which had just come to light. But beyond the fact that Mrs. Jeffrey had been answerable for the death which had occurred in the library at the time of her marriage—that, in the words of the district attorney, she had come to her husband with blood on her hands—my thoughts would not go. Confusion followed the least attempt to settle the vital question of how far Miss Tuttle and Mr. Jeffrey had been involved in the earlier crime and what the coming interview with these two would add to our present knowledge. In my anxiety to have this question answered I hastened my steps and was soon at the door of Miss Tuttle's present dwelling place.

I doubt if she noticed my agitation. She was too much swayed by her own. Advancing upon me in all the unconscious pride of her great beauty, she tremulously remarked:

"You have a message for me. Is it from headquarters, or has the district attorney still more questions to ask?"

"I have a much more trying errand than that," I hastened to say, with some idea of preparing her for an experience that could not fail to be one of exceptional trial. "For reasons which will be explained to you by those in greater authority than myself you are wanted at the house where—where"— I could not help stammering under the light of her melancholy eyes —"where I saw you once before," I lamely concluded.

"The house in Waverley avenue?" she objected wildly, with the first signs of positive terror I had ever beheld in her.

I nodded, dropping my eyes. What call had I to penetrate the conscience of this woman?

"Are they there—all there?" she presently asked again. "The police and—and Mr. Jeffrey?"

"Madam," I respectfully protested, "my duty is limited to conducting you to the place named. A carriage is waiting. May I beg that you will prepare yourself to go at once to Waverley avenue?"

For answer she subjected me to a long and earnest look which I found it impossible to evade. Then she hastened from the room, but with very unsteady steps.

When she returned ready for her ride this change in her spirits was less observable, and by the time we had reached the house in Waverley avenue she had so far regained her old courage as to move and speak with the calmness of despair if not of mental serenity.

The major was awaiting us at the door and bowed gravely before her heavily veiled figure.

"Miss Tuttle," he asked, without any preamble, the moment she was well inside the house, "may I inquire of you here, and before I show you what will excuse us for subjecting you to the distress of entering these doors, whether your sister, Mrs. Jeffrey, had any other name or was ever known by any other name than that of Veronica?"

"She was christened Antoinette as well as Veronica, but the person in whose memory the former name was given her was no honor to the family, and she very soon dropped it and was only known as Veronica. Oh, what have I done?" she cried, awed and frightened by the silence which followed the utterance of these simple words.

Before any of us were quite ready to speak, a tap at the door told us that Durbin had arrived with Mr. Jeffrey. Facing the small group clustered in the dismal hall fraught with such unutterable associations, he earnestly prayed:

"Do not keep me in suspense. Why am I summoned here?"

"You are summoned to learn the murderous secret of these old walls, and who it was that last made use of it. Do you feel inclined to hear these details from my lips, or are you ready to state that you already know the means by which so many persons, in times past as well as in times present, have met death here? We do not require you to answer us."

"I know the means," he allowed, recognizing without doubt that the crisis of crises had come and that denial would be worse than useless.

"Then it only remains for us to acquaint you with the identity of the person who last pressed the fatal spring. But perhaps you know that too?"

The major

"I"— He paused; words were impossible to him, and in that pause his eyes flashed helplessly in the direction of Miss Tuttle.

But the major was quick on his feet and was already between him and that lady. This act forced from Mr. Jeffrey's lips the following broken sentence:

"I should—like—you—to—tell—me."

Great gasps came with each heavily spoken word.

"Perhaps this morsel of lace will do it in a gentler manner than I could," responded the district attorney, opening his hand, in which lay the scrap of lace that an hour or so before I had plucked away from the boarding of that fatal closet.

Mr. Jeffrey eyed it and understood. His hands went up to his face, and he swayed to the point of falling. Miss Tuttle came quickly forward.

"Oh!" she moaned as her eyes fell on the little white shred. "The providence of God has found us out. We have suffered, labored and denied in vain."

"Yes," came in dreary echo from the man none of us had understood till now; "so great a crime could not be hid. God will have vengeance. What are we that we should hope to avert it by any act or at any cost?"

The major, with his eyes fixed piercingly on this miserable man, replied with one pregnant sentence:

"Then you forced your wife to suicide?"

"No," he began. But before another word could follow Miss Tuttle, resplendent in beauty and beaming with new life, broke in with the fervid cry:

"You wrong him and you wrong her by such a suggestion. It was not her husband, but her conscience, that forced her to this retributive act. What Mr. Jeffrey might have done had she proved obdurate and blind to the enormity of her own guilt I do not know, but that he is innocent of so influencing her is proved by the shock he suffered at finding she had taken her punishment into her own hands."

"Mr. Jeffrey will please answer the question," insisted the major, whereupon the latter, with great effort, but with the first appearance of real candor yet seen in him, said earnestly:

"I did nothing to influence her. I was in no condition to do so. I was benumbed—dead. When first she told me—it was in some words muttered in her sleep—I thought she was laboring under some fearful nightmare, but when she persisted and I questioned her and found the horror true I was like a man turned instantly into stone save for one intolerable throb within. I am still so. Everything passes by me like a dream. She was so young, seemingly so innocent and light hearted. I loved her! Gentlemen, you have thought me guilty of my wife's death, this young fairylike creature to whom I ascribed all the virtues, and I was willing, willing that you should think so, willing even to face the distrust and opprobrium of the whole world, and so was her sister, the noble woman whom you see before you, rather than that the full horror of her crime should be known and a name so dear be given up to execration. We thought we could keep the secret—we felt that we must keep the secret. We took an oath—in French—in the carriage, with the detectives opposite us. She kept it—God bless her! I kept it. But it was all useless—a tiny bit of lace is found hanging to a lifeless splinter, and all our efforts, all the hopes and agony of weeks, are gone for naught. The world will soon know of her awful deed—and I"—

He still loved her. That was apparent in every look, in every word he uttered. We marveled in awkward silence and were glad when the major said:

"The deed, as I take it, was an unpremeditated one on her part. Is that why her honor was dearer to you than your own, and why you could risk the reputation if not the life of the woman who you say sacrificed herself to it?"

"Yes, it was unpremeditated. She hardly realized her act. If you must know her heart through all this dreadful business we have her words to show you—words which she spent the last miserable day of her life in writing. The few lines which I showed the captain and which have been published to the world was an inclosure meant for the public eye. The real letter, telling the whole terrible truth, I kept for myself and for the sister who already knew her sin. Oh, we did everything we could!" And he again moaned. "But it was in vain; quite in vain."

There were no signs of subterfuge in him now, and we all, unless I except Durbin, began to yield him credence. Durbin never gives credence to anybody whose name he has once heard associated with crime.

"And this Pfeiffer was contracted to her? A man she had secretly married while a schoolgirl and who at this very critical instant had found his way to the house"—

"You shall read her letter. It was meant for me, for me only—but you shall see it. I cannot talk of him or of her crime. It is enough that I have been unable to think of anything else since first those dreadful words fell from her lips in sleep, thirty-six hours before she died." Then with the inconsistency of great anguish he suddenly broke forth into the details he shrank from and cried:

"She muttered, lying there, that she was no bigamist. That she had killed one husband before she married the other. Killed him in the old house and by the method her ancestors had taught her. And I, risen on my elbow, listened, with the sweat oozing from my forehead, but not believing her, oh, not believing her, any more than any one of you would believe such words uttered in a dream by the darling of your heart. But when, with a long drawn sigh, she murmured, 'Murderer!' and raised her fists—tiny fists, hands which I had kissed a thousand times —and shook them in the air, an awful terror seized me, and I sought to grasp them and hold them down, but was hindered by some nameless inner recoil under which I could not speak or gasp or move. Of course, it was some dream horror she was laboring under, a nightmare of unimaginable acts and thoughts, but it was one to hold me back; and when she lay quiet again and her face resumed its old sweetness in the moonlight, I found myself staring at her almost as if it were true—what she had said—that word—that awful word which no woman could use with regard to herself, even in dreams, unless—something, an echo from the discordant chord in our two weeks' married life, rose like the confirmation of a doubt in my shocked and rebellious breast.

From that hour till dawn nothing in that slowly brightening room seemed real, not her face lying buried in its youthful locks upon the pillow, not the objects well known and well prized by which we were surrounded—not myself—most of all, not myself, unless the icy dew oozing from the roots of my lifted hair was real, unless that shape, fearsome, vague, but persistent, which hovered in the shadows above us, drawing a line of eternal separation between me and my wife, was a thing which could be caught and strangled and— Oh, I rave! I chatter like a madman, but I did not rave that night. Nor did I rave when, in the bright, broad sunlight, her eyes slowly unclosed and she started to see me bending so near her, but not with my usual kiss or glad good morning. I could not question her then; I dared not. The smile which slowly rose to her lips was too piteous—it showed confidence. I waited till after breakfast. Then, while she was seated where she could not see my face, I whispered the question, 'Do you know that you have had a horrible dream?' She shrieked and turned. I saw her face and knew that what she had uttered in her sleep was true.

"I have no remembrance of what I said to her. She tried to tell me how she had been tempted and how she had not realized her own act till the moment I bent down to kiss her lips as

Rheumatism

What is the use of telling the rheumatic that he feels as if his joints were being dislocated?

He knows that his sufferings are very much like the tortures of the rack.

What he wants to know is what will permanently cure his disease.

That, according to thousands of grateful testimonials, is

Hood's Sarsaparilla

It promptly neutralizes the acid in the blood on which the disease depends, completely eliminates it, and strengthens the system against its return. Try Hood's.

Proverbs

"When the butter won't come put a penny in the churn," is an old time dairy proverb. It often seems to work though no one has ever told why.

When mothers are worried because the children do not gain strength and flesh we say give them Scott's Emulsion.

It is like the penny in the milk because it works and because there is something astonishing about it.

Scott's Emulsion is simply a milk of pure cod liver oil with some hypophosphites especially prepared for delicate stomachs.

Children take to it naturally because they like the taste and the remedy takes just as naturally to the children because it is so perfectly adapted to their wants.

For all weak and pale and thin children Scott's Emulsion is the most satisfactory treatment.

We will send you the penny, i. e., a sample free.

Be sure that this picture in the form of a label is on the wrapper of every bottle of Emulsion you buy.

Women as Well as Men Are Made Miserable by Kidney Trouble.

Kidney trouble preys upon the mind, discourages and lessens ambition; beauty, vigor and cheerfulness soon disappear when the kidneys are out of order or diseased.

Kidney trouble has become so prevalent that it is not uncommon for a child to be born afflicted with weak kidneys. If the child urinates too often, if the urine scalds the flesh or if, when the child reaches an age when it should be able to control the passage, it is yet afflicted with bed-wetting, depend upon it, the cause of the difficulty is kidney trouble, and the first step should be towards the treatment of these important organs. This unpleasant trouble is due to a diseased condition of the kidneys and bladder and not to a habit as most people suppose.

Women as well as men are made miserable with kidney and bladder trouble, and both need the same great remedy. The mild and the immediate effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It is sold by druggists, in fifty-cent and one dollar sizes. You may have a sample bottle by mail free, also pamphlet telling all about it, including many of the thousands of testimonial letters received from sufferers cured. In writing Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., be sure and mention this paper.

A Woman's Back

The Aches and Pains Will Disappear if the Advice of This Bellefonte Citizen is followed.

A woman's back has many aches and pains.

Most times 'tis the kidneys' fault.

Backache is really kidney ache;

That's why Doan's Kidney Pills cure it.

Many Bellefonte women know this.

Read what one has to say about it:

Mrs. Nancy Davis, of 246 East Logan Street, says: "I suffered a bad fall some years ago when living in Rochester. I thought at first that I had broken my back. I was unable to get up without assistance and from that time I suffered for years with a weak back and excruciating pains through the loins and through the small of my back. Sometimes I was completely prostrated and helpless. Doctors and medicines failed to help me and the pain continued until I got Doan's Kidney Pills. I took only a few doses before I began to feel better and when I had continued using them for a while I was thoroughly cured. My back regained its strength and the pain left me. I have had no return of the trouble since."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cts. cents. Foster—Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y. sole agents for the United States.

THE BALLOT COMPLICATIONS.

About 9650 votes were polled for the presidential electors in this county, while those cast for the remaining offices, both state and county, averaged under 8900. On the congressional vote alone, 650 less votes were cast for Dresser than for the Republican electors and 100 less for Shaffer than for the Democratic electoral delegation.

The only reason which can possibly be given for such a change is that 750 voters were mislead by the form of the ballot and placed a cross mark in the square at the head of the electoral column only, intending thus to vote the whole ticket. Allowing for the facts that many Democrats may have voted for Roosevelt while the bulk of the floating vote was handled for the straight Democratic ticket, it would appear that at least 350 more Republicans than Democratic votes were lost to the county ticket in this manner.

It is only a matter of calculation to determine that these lost votes would have elected the two Republican legislative candidates by handsome pluralities. However, irrespective of the final result, the complication in the ballot, which grew from the desire of the party leaders to smooth the path of the straight party man has signally failed of its purpose. The independent voter has and will learn the intricacies of the ballot, while eight per cent. of the total vote, which was probably twenty per cent. of the straight vote, was lost to all the ticket save the presidential electors.

If the next legislature will give us a simple form of ballot, in which each voter will be called upon to mark each candidate of his selection, no fault could be found by any fair-minded person,

THE JUDGE-ELECT.

President Roosevelt has carried Centre county by over thirteen hundred plurality, the largest a Republican has ever received, while Judge Love is beaten by over a thousand.

It is left to us to rejoice in the overwhelming vote for the head of our ticket, but, while we sympathize with Judge Love in his defeat, both majorities are too great for any attempt at explanation, save that that they indicate the unhampered wish of the people.

The Republican has consistently urged the support of the whole Republican ticket and we have warned the people what Democratic success in this campaign in Centre county would mean. But we now call upon Mr. Orvis to realize that his majority was not Democratic, that he was elected by the independent vote of the county, and that it is the citizens of Centre county and not his party to whom he is to administer justice for the next ten years.

We congratulate the Judge-elect upon his newly acquired honors, for we feel that he is worthy of them, and we hope that his administration may be as free from partisan bias as his anti-election pledges have assured us.

Centre County Teachers.

Ann's way. She simply convulsed her audience and received several hearty encores at the very moment of closing.

On the whole Tuesday's session has been most enjoyable and profitable and Prof. Gramley is wearing a yard wide smile because while he gets a small amount of credit for a success (they are expected) he would get 100 per cent for failure.

WEDNESDAY A. M. SESSION.

The morning session of Institute was most liberally patronized by the outside public and with Dr. Stetson, Miss Willis and Dr. N. C. Schaeffer our state Supt. were given a treat.

It is a matter of great satisfaction to Supt. Gramley to know that his efforts to meet the requirements of the modern Centre County teacher for intellectual pabulum of a high grade is successful.

The feminine ⅞ of the institute is, dainty, discriminating and critical, no adulterated foods go with her, and she detects the pure article with a zest equal to the disgust with which she casts aside the spurious.

So it is that Instructors like Drs Stetson and Schaeffler and Miss Willis are enthusiastically received. It is a remarkable fact that in so large a body of young people you find no laggards, nor promenadors of the street during the Institute hours.

In fact a more earnest, conscientious, and attentive lot of teachers ever composed the Institute body than the present. This fact has been commented on by those outside the profession and is apparent to anyone who is interested enough in what is going on about him to notice.

Dr. Schaeffer started out by declaring that he was not a Quaker, but was going to make a Quaker speech. After listening to his eloquent and polished words, we concluded that while he was Pennsylvania German born the "spirit" had "moved" him to the delivery of one of the most eloquent, patriotic and historically interesting addresses we have listened to in a long time. He seemed to have the "four essential elements" of a great speech on which he was actually lecturing. "A topic of great interest," "a great audience" "a splendid delivery" and the fourth "The announcement of a great truth."

To follow him through his talk from our notes would simply be to mar the beauty of an effort which should be heard or read in its completeness.

Miss Willie finally succeeded in saying au revoir with Burn's beautiful little poem "A Man's a Man for a That."

Christmas is Coming.

In your list of Christmas gifts why not include a ticket to the Star Course which opens Dec. 2nd? If you have no family of your own there are many young people and older ones too to whom these tickets would be a source of great enjoyment through the winter months; something to look forward to to cheer the long gloomy days. After all, isn't it the truest happiness to give gifts that add to the sunshine of other lives less fortunate than our own? The Star course this season is guaranteed by The Red Path Bureau of Boston to be the most varied and finest we could offer. Each entertainment first-class. No poor members—no cheap talent to fill in to bring the price down. The committee are not asking you to take tickets for "sweet charity's sake," but because there is a pleasure in store for each one to enjoy and to pass over to some one else. Bellefonte needs good entertainments of a high order, so to be generous and encourage the effort, give the young people the chance to enjoy this season's course.

Frank R. Roberson gave Russia and Japan to an audience of 2,000 in Philadelphia last week. His pictures were pronounced magnificent and the lecture fine. Roberson has filled ten consecutive nights in Philadelphia in the P. R. R. course and ten on the Central course. He is the second number on the Star course.

A Pretty Wedding.

A very pretty wedding took place Wednesday at 11 o'clock at the home of Mr. and Mrs. James Carson when their daughter Miss Annie M., and Walter Armstrong were united in marriage, Rev. Mattern of Clearfield a former pastor officiating. Miss Emma Carson was bridesmaid and Mr. John Armstrong best man. The bride and bridesmaid wore white mull trimmed in lace, while the groom and best man wore the conventional black. After the ceremony a sumptuous wedding dinner was served to about 70 invited guests.

The bride is one of Bellefonte's amiable and accomplished young ladies while the groom is a trusted and worthy employee in the grocery store of Harper Bros. May long life and happiness be theirs is the sincere wish of a host of friends.

A Very Interesting Address.

Mr. Frank Edwards is a young man who is preparing for missionary work in Africa, gave a very instructive and interesting talk in the U.B church Sunday evening, subject being "Africa and Some of Its People." The large congregation was delighted with the address which was in part as follows:

We have learned to know Africa by names. It has been called Darkest Africa or the dark continent as it truly is being destitute of the enlightenment of the christian civilization. The open sore of the world. Ethopia and she is rapidly stretching her hand unto God. That hot-bed of heathendom stands before us as the open appeal to the heart and conscience of christiandom.

There are in the continent of Africa about 300 different tribes and each may have as different way of living and speaking as the people of two countries.

I was born in Freetown, the capital city of the English colony, Sierra Leone, on the west coast of Africa. Freetown represents about all there is of civilization on the central western coast and they pattern after the styles in England. The tribes in this section of Africa are very intelligent.

The principal tribes are: Mandingos, Lemnes, Mendis, Jollofs, Baggars, Sherbros, Galliners, Limbas, Soosoos, Foolars, Loccos, Bulloms and Kroomers. They really have no desire to look like the white race for they consider the white man very homely. Because of the heat they have very little clothing. Their houses are only mud huts which are very seldom built four cornered, as they believe witches would catch them if they were. The men excepting the medicine men, and fetich makers wear their hair short. They have no razors, scissors or shears and so shave their hair off with a cutlass, an instrument resembling a corn-cutter. They are very fond of ornaments and wear those of native make. There are cannibals about Sierra Leone, but christianity and civilization have come too near for these customs to continue to prevail.

The laws are virtually the same as our ten commandments, except those that speak of God and the Sabbath day.

The punishment is very sure and severe for stealing, although it is not considered a crime unless the theft is caught. Rice is the chief food and it is eaten out of the pot with the hands as they have no dishes or spoons. Girls in that country must be happy for they have no dishes to wash.

Women do the hard work in the house and field. The men do the sewing and embroidery usually for themselves. A man is not considered well-to-do with fewer than three wives.

Agriculture is the principal industry All tropical fruits and products are raised.

They all believe in a supreme being, but who he is and how approached and worshipped is not known. They have idols of stone, mud or wood.

They worship the spirits of the dead and cook for them. Sacrificing is a prominent part of the worship while chickens are the favorite sacrifice.

Mr. Edwards displayed a number of idols and charms (greegrees) that were worshipped for many years and used to keep evil spirits and witches away. Also used curios in exp'aining customs of the people.

He closed with an earnest appeal, first to send more missionaries for they are needed and the people anxious to have them. The harvest is ripe but laborers few. The christian people of this country can be such missionaries.

Second. Do not help to send any more rum to Africa. As each individual go is to make the nation, so in proportion each one is responsible for this great traffic forced upon the unevangelized millions in the name of civilized commerce.

The United States sends to Africa every year 250 missionaries and Boston alone 1,000,000 gallons of rum and you may imagine the result. Do not help in your own little way to send any more rum.

Who Killed (Cock Robin) Parker?

"Who killed Cock Robin Parker
Who proved such a barker?"
"I," says bold Teddy,
"I did the trick with my 'great big stick,'
A killed Mister Parker!"

"Who saw him die?"
"I," says Bill Bryan,
"I helped him to die
All on the sly I saw him die."

"Who'll dig his grave?"
"I," says Bill Hearst, for I saw him first
I'll dig his grave."

And the "bunch" then wended its way to the silent forests on the banks of Salt Creek where they laid poor Cock Robin to rest—and then it snowed.

A BIG PLURALITY.

NEW YORK, November 10.—With the election returns still incomplete, the plurality of President Roosevelt in the nation, according to all indications Thursday night, will exceed 1,500,000—the greatest plurality ever given an American candidate. The nearest approach to this vote was in 1896, when McKinley received a plurality approximating 850,000, and in 1872 when Grant received 762,991.

To-night the interest centers in Missouri and Maryland. Late returns indicate that the former state is in the Republican column so far as presidential electors are concerned, but that Joseph W. Folk, the Democratic candidate, has been elected Governor.

In Maryland the Presidential vote will probably be cast for President Roosevelt. Late returns to-night indicate that Thomas A. Smith, Democrat, has been elected to Congress in the first district by 450 plurality. Congressman Jackson, of this district, to-night, however, puts forward a claim of trick ballots and fraud and says he will contest the election.

In the other States it is simply a question of plurality.

THE SOLID SOUTH BROKEN.

The Solid South was broken by the probable defection of Missouri—this section of the country usually having thirteen states in the Democratic column. The figures Wednesday night show but twelve states with 133 votes for Judge Parker.

President Roosevelt carried all the northern states—swept them in fact—and to-night the had 343 electoral votes.

The banner state is Pennsylvania. Twenty-four hours after the polls closed the returns from this state indicate that Roosevelt's plurality would reach 480,000.

Next came Illinois, where the President polled approximately 225,000 more votes than did Judge Parker. Ohio gave Roosevelt 200,000 and New York 184,000. The New York city returns are still incomplete, but the amazement over this result has not subsided. Judge Parker carried Greater New York by only 41,000.

SOME INTERESTING FEATURES.

In general the situation is chiefly interesting tonight because of the fact that the tickets in many of the States were cut. President Roosevelt ran ahead of his ticket in many localities, notably in Massachusetts, where he secured a plurality of 86,000 votes.

In Nebraska the definite announcement that the Legislature is Republican disposes of the fact that William J. Bryan had aspirations for a United States Senatorship. In that state, too, the governorship is in doubt, and it will require official returns to determine who is elected. Both sides claim a victory.

SITUATION IN MINNESOTA

There is a curious situation in Minnesota, where Roosevelt secured 125,000 plurality, but where a Democratic governor and a Republican lieutenant governor were elected. The election of a Democratic governor is the second in the history of the state.

Chairman Babcock of the Republican Congressional Committee has been returned to Congress from Wisconsin, but Chairman Cowherd, of the Democratic Congressional Committee, was defeated in Missouri.

The situation in Colorado presented an interesting phase Wednesday night Roosevelt has carried the state by probably 15,000, but the Governorship is still in doubt, both sides claiming a victory.

As interesting to the voters as anything was the statements issued by Judge Parker and William Jennings Bryan.

At a late hour both parties claimed Maryland, the Republicans by 1500. The Democratic State managers said the state would cast its electoral vote for Parker and Davis.

The Youth's Companion In 1905.

Dr. Huff took Frank Wetzler to a Philadelphia hospital for treatment of the nose, Saturday.

Miss Elizabeth Orvis, of Philipsburg, returned home on Friday to attend the teacher's institute.

R. C. Chesseman, of Washington, D. C., after a brief visit to his sister, Mrs. Thomas Taylor, returned home.

An entertainment will be held in the United Evangelical church on Friday, Nov. 18th. Admission 10 and 15cts. The community is invited to be present. Proceeds for the benefit of the church.

Joseph Green, of Mill street, on election morning was accidentally shot, while out hunting with Wm. Johnson Jr. Johnson was carrying his gun under his arm when in the act of changing his gun to his shoulder it was accidentally discharged. Ray Baird met the boys a few minutes before the shooting occurred. Not one of the boys can tell what caused the gun to discharge That remains a mystery. 84 No. 6 shot entered Joe's body. Dr. S. M. Huff took out ten shot, but the boy could not stand the operation. He is suffering from the effects.

William Stanley had a few leisure hours and started with his gun and dog for a ground hog. The dog trailed the animal, it hiding itself in the ground, Wm. saying "your my meat. I have you now." With the aid of the dog and pick Wm. began digging his hog out, but Lo! and behold, he got the full benefit of a skunk.

CENTRE HALL.

Cold wintry weather, although coming so soon finds our farmers ready for it.

One farmer near our burg has his corn husked, fodder in the barn, manure hauled out and the stones picked off the fields to be mowed next summer. Another hustling farmer a little nearer town had his corn in and manure out a few days after the middle of October.

Going up the valley one day last week I passed a corn field that was only partly husked.

An old proverb says "you can't teach an old horse new tricks," and so you can't make a hustler out of a laggard.

A traveling occulist named Roshon from Johnstown, is fitting our people with store eyes. He is stopping with John Quincy Adams Kennedy. Another spectacle man is stopping with John Nearhood. He is from Phila. and also was here during picnic week.

Ex-sheriff C. T. Brungart bought two lots on Hoffer street from D. F. Luse for $115. This with the acre he bought last summer and the three lots belonging to the property on which he lives makes 2¼ acres which he will garden next summer. Off a fourth acre planted in onions last summer he realized $72. At that rate an acre should yield $288. It beats wheat raising, doesn't it, farmers? Mr. Brungart is having a large chicken house built on one of the lots. The upper story will be used as an onion drying room.

Who is Katharine Ridgeway?

This is what Charles C. Kenney, chairman of the entertainment course of the P. R. R. Y. M. C. A., of Philadelphia says: "The Katharine Ridgeway Co. has appeared regularly on our course for the past six years, and our people look upon it as the annual Star attraction. Personally I consider this Company one of the strongest lyceum attractions extant. The work of Miss Ridgeway being especially worthy of the most enthusiastic praise. I would not consider any Star Course complete that did not include this company.

The Star Course in Petrikin Hall opens Dec. 2nd. with this company, each artist of which is a star. Course tickets to five entertainments $1.50. We appeal to our people to aid the committee in bringing these fine attractions, remember the young people in your families will share in these course entertainments. The influence of which will tend to lift them into the realms of more beautiful thoughts and living. Help the W. C. T. MRS. MARY A. LIVERMORE.

Author, Reformer and Temperance and Suffrage Advocate.

Mrs. Mary A. Livermore of Melrose, Mass., is one of the noted American women who have impressed their "footprints on the sands of time." Mrs. Livermore, author and reformer and vigorous champion of temperance and equal suffrage, was born in Boston Dec. 19, 1821, the daughter of an American naval officer. Her maiden name was Rice. She married Rev. D. P. Livermore, a Universalist minister, in 1845. Before her marriage she had taught school, first in a girls' seminary in Charlestown and then in a family school upon a Virginia plantation. Here she studied the slavery question and became an ardent abolitionist.

She was identified with the Washingtonian temperance movement and organized a cold water army of 1,500 boys and girls.

In 1857 she moved with her husband to Chicago. There she was engaged in newspaper and literary work. In the Chicago wigwam in 1860 she was the only woman reporter to cover the nomination of Abraham Lincoln. During the war she was active in the United States sanitary commission. She joined the woman suffrage movement after the war. Twice she has been sent by the Republicans of Melrose, where she makes her home, to the state conventions of the party, to present resolutions on temperance and woman suffrage, and on both occasions the planks were incorporated in the party platform.—Boston Globe.

MRS. MARY A. LIVERMORE.

The Wife's Share.

This question is often asked: Is a man's wife to be regarded on the business side as a partner with individual rights as well as joint liabilities, as a salaried official acting under orders and with little or no responsibility or as a mendicant? In one or the other of these positions a wife must necessarily stand, and it is just as well that it should be clearly understood from the outset which of them she is to fill, remarks a writer in an English newspaper.

As a partner in the domestic firm she must have an equal right to draw her share of the profits, even though the other partner keeps the books and has the money passing through his hands.

Supposing, however, the husband is not to be convinced of the strict justice of this theory, the wife has a strong plea in reserve.

"When my wife asks me for money I give it to her," says one husband. Why should the wife have to ask for what is already her due? A man earns his wages; he will not have to ask, and his employer can entertain no feeling of "giving."

Only long and patient observation can enable any mere man to understand the continual and unjust humiliation suffered by multitudes of admirable women—the pinching and contriving and patient enduring they will undergo because of this perpetual ordeal of "asking" their husbands for money. The husband may be the best natured man living; the wife may know that asking means receiving, but that which annoys her is the asking itself.

In many cases the money is given as an "allowance," but in that case the word is still one which implies a favor given and received. It is not an "allowance" properly speaking, but is simply her share of the income.

Home, the Haven of Rest.

While the women's club movement has been of distinct advantage in some ways, its tendency has been to overdo the matter, and many homes as well as their mistresses have been actually "clubbed" to death. Women, as a rule, are extremely conscientious. If they are in a club they wish to do their share of the work. A man goes to his club for rest or pleasure; a woman to work, either for others or else for the very work's sake. If one club or even two sufficed then it would not be so bad, but in the multiplication of clubs there is no end, each with its divers demands upon time and strength. Cases of nervous prostration brought on by overdoing no longer count. They are far too common. But when the ambitious little president of one of the largest women's clubs in the country goes all to pieces, her mind an absolute and hopeless wreck, it is time to call a halt. Home and its duties come first. After that, as much as one has time and strength for without overdoing.

Sentiment in a Room.

The WOMAN'S BACK. [illegible] Decorator in [illegible] at the heart of the [illegible] the average decorator. "He puts no heart into his work," is the accusation. "He is mechanical. He constructs a period room that is correct decoratively, but superficial, cold and unsympathetic. You never can make a lovable room with mere side walls, a floor and a little necessary furniture. You must touch the sentimental chord in one's nature to succeed. We enjoy the colonial room, with its buffet of old Dutch crockery, its mantel display of East Indian curios, its old Dutch prints on the wall or the examples of old 'sampler' work because these minor fitments touch the tender chords of our nature and arouse a patriotic sentiment."

For the Baby Who Creeps.

Some clever woman has devised a practical little garment for a baby to creep in whereby his little clothes are kept clean and free from wear. It consists of a very full skirt, made of denim, with an inch hem, just long enough to come below the knees. This has a band two inches wide, to which are fastened two straps of the same material about the width of the band. These straps are crossed in front and also in the back, so that they will hold over the shoulders. They are stitched together at the crossing. The bottom edges of the skirt are stitched together, leaving a hole at each side just large enough for the little leg to slip through.

Necessaries For the Mending Basket.

A pair of shears, a pair of scissors, a yard tape measure, a small pincushion filled with pins, a needlebook containing assorted darning needles, assorted sewing needles, a tape needle and a bodkin; rolls of tape of different widths in gray, white and black; three small boxes containing different sorts of buttons, a card each of white and black hooks and eyes, darning cotton of different colors for hose and gloves, a hose and glove darner, a thimble and a box of common starch for perspiring fingers—all these are of use in the mending basket.—Ladies' Home Journal.

Using Old Lace.

A rapid and easy way of embroidering and one which enables a woman to use up odds and ends of old and new lace, especially in floral design, is to cut the leaves from the net foundation and apply on a cotton, wool or silk gown. Work over the design, covering the figures well, with embroidery silk or mercerized cotton. The result is excellent. The embroidery stands out well, and the lace pattern answers the same purpose as a stamped design and in most cases is more attractive than the conventional patterns found in the shops.

Look After the Quiet Child.

A child who is always quiet should be watched carefully, for it is quite an unnatural state of affairs and shows that something is wrong. Those who go much among the schools of the very poor know that it often means lassitude from want of proper nourishment. If it occurs in the children of the better off it shows that vitality is low and that for some reason or another the food is not giving the strength it should do.

Spoiling the Cheeks.

It is a well known fact that resting the cheek in the warm palm of the hand rapidly assists the fading of that cheek, but a doctor declares that this injury is not so rapid as that suffered by repeated kisses. The warm lips of another, it appears, create sad havoc on a fresh, rosy cheek and red lips when pressed there too often.

Man's Favorite Women.

If the man who represented the majority of men were asked what he most liked in woman his answer would be: "Give me beauty, all beauty, to walk and to frivol with; sympathy, all sympathy, to talk and to live with!"—Chic.

You will find as you look back upon your life that the moments that stand out, the moments when you have really lived, are the moments when you have done things in a spirit of love.—Woman's Life.

REFUSED LOVE SHE FINDS DEATH.

Unrequitted Affection Results in Suicide of Bellefonte Girl.

PITTSBURG, Pa., Nov. 14.—Rose Washburn, aged 21 years, of Bellefonte, Centre county, Pa., is the name and address of the young woman who committed suicide by jumping from the Sixth street bridge into the Allegheny river, Thursday night of last week. The body was positively identified at the Allegheny county morgue, by Samuel M. Irwin, of 534 Hawkis avenue, Braddock, Friday morning, and the papers of identification were signed by him at 8:45 o'clock.

Irwin called at the morgue Friday morning and made known his desire to view the body. He was led to the case in which the remains of the woman have reposed since last Friday afternoon, when they were recovered from the Allegheny river, and immediately recognized the face of his cousin, Miss Washburn, who he said lived at his residence in Braddock, until last August. Irwin said he knew little of the woman, except that while she lived with him she was employed in various restaurants in the city.

"She left my house last August," said he, "telling us that she intended returning to her home in Bellefonte, where she resided with an aunt. That is the last we saw of her, although my wife has heard of her occasionally, and when we saw the account of the suicide in the daily papers neither my wife nor I had the slightest suspicion that the woman could be Rose, thinking, of course, that she was still at her home in Bellefonte."

Love is said to have been responsible for the rash act of the girl. She is said to have been infatuated with a street car conductor in Braddock, and it was because of his refusal to marry her that she decided to end her life. Of late the girl is said to have resided in furnished rooms in McKees Rocks, and had been employed in a restaurant in Pittsburg.

Irwin and his wife were called upon Thursday night by a man who represented himself to be a newspaper reporter, who informed them that he was of the opinion that the body of the woman at the morgue was that of a relative; that she had been rooming in McKees Rocks and had left a note in her room telling the reason for having taken her life. An effort is being made to locate the room said to have been occupied by the girl.

The case has been the object of more interest to the public than any other heretofore cared for in the Allegheny county morgue. Since the body was taken from the Allegheny river last Friday afternoon a continuous stream of curious persons have viewed it, most every person claiming that the face was familiar. The deputy coroners at the morgue are greatly relieved that the remains have at last been identified and will be laken in charge by relatives.

[The above article of news is going the rounds of the city and country newspapers. A reporter on this paper Monday interviewed Miss Washburn and finds her well and happy but very much astonished by the notices of her untimely death appearing in the papers. Whoever the unforunnate may be, we assure you it is not Miss Rose Washburn, of Bellefonte.—ED]

REPUBLICAN PLURALITIES.

Pennsylvania's Tribute to Roosevelt and the Republican Policy.

PHILADELPHIA, November 11.—Complete but not official figures received by the Associated Press from every county in the State with the exception of Allegheny, in which Pittsburg is situated, but from where a close estimate has been obtained show that President Roosevelt's plurality in Pennsylvania has reached 494,712, probably the largest plurality ever given a presidential candidate by any State in the political history of the country.

President Roosevelt's total vote, according to figures at hand, is 830,312, and Judge Parker's 335,600 McKinley's total vote in 1900 was 712,665 and Bryan's 424,232.

The city of Philadelphia gives Roosevelt a total vote of 227,683 out of 280,713 cast for all candidates.

Returns received from 49 of the 67 give Swallow (Prohibitionist) 23,786 votes. The 18 missing counties in 1900 gave Wooley 6,568. Wooley's total vote in Pennsylvania four years ago was 27,908.

The returns so far received for Debs (Socialist) and Corregan, (Social Labor,) are so incomplete that no approximate total can be given.

Incomplete figures from all counties in the State give Elkin a plurality of about 410,000 over Thompson for Supreme Court judge.

Cortelyou.

Save the President himself, no man looms larger in the moment of victory than George Bruce Cortelyou. Republican gratitude goes out to him, and gratitude goes out to any strong, honorable man who fights the battles of others—fights them successfully and always fights fair.

But something more than the honor that success commands is the due of Mr. Cortelyou. He has been outrageously attacked; with a persistence and vindictiveness that must leave their mark on a sensitive nature, and that, perhaps, were not always counterbalanced by the knowledge that the attack was his opponents' tribute to his own efficiency, their confession that the campaign he had organized was sweeping them away. In the full light of his work and its splendid results there is in the minds of his countrymen something of the same "positive attachment" that Grover Cleveland felt for Mr. Cortelyou when the latter was acting as his confidential clerk.

The "battles, sieges, fortunes" he had endured, the honorable scars he had received in behalf of his chief, of his party and what he believed was the best interest of his country, have secured for Mr Cortelyou the loyal liking of every Republican. They have won the regard of every American in whom the instinct of fair play has not been throttled for the moment by the supposed exigencias of a campaign.

Senator Hanna went through a like storm of calumny in managing the McKinley campaigns of 1896 and 1900. In the general sentiment and implicit confidence with which Mr. Cortelyou is regarded now, he has the same compensation which came to his predecessor, the same assurance that the American people do not forget those who fight a good battle, and as we have said, fight it fair.

The November "Smart Set."

There are thirty-seven signed contributions in the November Smart Set, and no magazine can offer a greater variety of stories and poems; certainly no standard is higher. The novelette which opens the issue is called "The Surrender," and is written by J. H. Twells, Jr. It is a powerful study of divorce, presented with great insight and feeling. The scenes, many of which are dramatic in the extreme, are laid in Paris, and the author reveals an intimate knowledge of the French capital.

A timely essay by the distinguished dramatist, Clyde Fitch, entitled "The Play and the Public," will be widely read and discussed. Mr. Fitch writes from the inside, and everything he says on a dramatic subject is ex cathedra.

In the long list of short stories it is difficult to choose any particular one which could be called "the best," for all are superlatively good. Gouverneur Morris's "The Honeymoon" will certainly stick in the memory of numerous readers. It is wonderfully photographic and strikingly original. In a different vein is George Horton's "The Office-Hunters," an amusing picture of social and political life in Washington. "Harmony Jack," by Grace MacGowan Cooke, is a breezy Western tale with plenty of the wholesome atmosphere of the plains. Viola Roseboro's "The Actress That Remembered" is a story of player folk, artistic and with an underlying tone of pathos. "A Rose in Ice" is the story of a manly newspaper reporter and a society girl, written in Herbert D. Ward's direct style. James Huneker's, "The Eternal Duel" occupies only a little space, but it is as cameo like as one of Maupassant's masterpieces. In addition to these tales there are others by such writers as Edna Kenton, Charles Battell Loomis, Virginia Woodward Cloud, Robert E. MacAlarney, Channing Pollock, W. J. Henderson and Arthur Train, besides a story in French by Hugues Le Roux and an essay by Kate Masterson.

The number is rich in excellent verse. Among the contributors are Edith M. Thomas, Joaquin Miller, Theodosia Garrison, Edward W. Barnard, Madeline Bridges, John Vance Cheney, Richard Burton, F. McArthur and Madison Cawein.

Thousands Cured

DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve has cured thousands of cases of piles. "I bought a box of DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve on the recommendation of our druggist," so writes C. H. LaCroix, of Zavalla, Tex. "and used it for a stubborn case of piles. It cured me permanently." Sold by Green's Pharmacy.

The distracting headaches from which so many women suffer make life a daily purgatory. If men suffered with headache as women do, business would be almost at a standstill. Does not the fact that women only suffer from these severe headaches suggest that there must be a womanly cause for them?

When the womanly organism is diseased, headache, backache, nervousness and sleeplessness are consequences which are sure to follow.

$500 Reward for Women Who Cannot be Cured.

Backed up by over a third of a century of remarkable and uniform cures, a record such as no other remedy for the diseases and weaknesses peculiar to women ever attained, the proprietors and makers of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription now feel fully warranted in offering to pay $500 in legal money of the United States, for any case of Leucorrhea, Female Weakness, Prolapsus, or Falling of Womb which they cannot cure. All they ask is a fair and reasonable trial of their means of cure.

Keep Your Nerve.

When your nerve is gone you are in bad plight to buck against the duties of life. Courage, bravery, enthusiasm, energy—all these are merely other names for nerve force. When your nerves get "shaky" and weak you are another person mentally, morally and physically. By the loss of nervous force people lose more than health; they lose the very essence of perfect manhood and womanhood. Nerves can be kept strong by proper nourishment. Vin-te-na cleanse the blood and warms it. When the blood is rich and clean the nerves are fed and made steady and strong. Vin-te-na cures every form of weakness and disease due to feeble nerve force. If you are not in prime condition take Vin-te-na the medicine that keeps you well and gives you 100 per cent. of nervous energy.

WILL ATTEND WORLD'S FAIR.

President Roosevelt Promises to Visit St. Louis Exposition

WILL ATTEND NOV. 26

A Committee Headed by Mayor Wells Journeyed to Washington for the Purpose—Conferred With President.

WILL ARRANGE FITTING PROGRAM

Washington, November 11.—President Roosevelt has promised to attend the Louisiana Purchase exposition on Saturday, the 26th of November. He made this promise Thursday night to a committee from St. Louis, headed by Mayor Wells, who came to Washington especially for the purpose of inviting him to the fair. The probability is the president may remain in St. Louis until the night of Sunday, November 27.

President Roosevelt has been anxious to see the fair ever since it opened. However, the presidential campaign impelled him to remain in the east and in August he so informed Mr. William Thompson, treasurer of the exposition.

The committee to which the president gave his promise to visit the fair consisted of Mayor Rolla Wells, William H. Thompson and Corbin H. Spencer, first vice president of the exposition. Their train was late, so they did not reach Washington until 6 o'clock. Through Secretary Loeb an immediate audience with the president was arranged. The committee remained with him for half an hour and each member urged on the president the acceptance of the invitation, pointing out the appropriateness of a visit of the chief executive of the nation and of the gratitude which would be felt by the people of St. Louis if he possibly could find time to go. The president cordially thanked the committee for its invitation and after consulting his engagements for the remainder of the month, he set Saturday, the 26th, as the most favorable opportunity available. It is expected that the president and those who go with him will leave here on Thanksgiving night and will reach St. Louis early Saturday morning. The invitation to Mr. Roosevelt, it is understood, is comprehensive enough to include any other persons he may wish to have with him and some of the cabinet are likely to accompany him.

The members of the committee are highly elated with the promptness with which Mr. Roosevelt decided to visit the fair. They feel that his attendance will have an excellent effect and that the day of his visit will be one of the banner days, if not the banner day, of the exposition's history. They say that arrangements immediately will be made for a fitting programme for that day, the chief feature, of course, being a thorough inspection of the grounds and buildings of the great fair, with such other appropriate exercises as befits the presence of the chief executive of the nation. For Sunday following, should there be no disappointment of the committee's expectation that the president will remain in St. Louis during that day, arrangements for his entertainment also will be made.

Mr. Thompson and Mr. Spencer left here for St. Louis Thursday night. Mayor Wells and L. B. Dozier, a member of the executive committee of the exposition who came with the committee on invitation to Washington, will remain here for a day or two.

An English Author Wrote

"No shade, no shine, no fruit, no flowers, no leaves — November!" Many Americans would add no freedom from catarrh, which is so aggravated during this month that it becomes constantly troublesome. There is abundant proof that catarrh is a constitutional disease. It is related to scrofula and consumption, being one of the wasting diseases. Hood's Sarsaparilla has shown that what is capable of eradicating scrofula, completely cures catarrh, and taken in time prevents consumption. We cannot see how any sufferer can put off taking this medicine, in view of the widely published record of its radical and permanent cures. It is undoubtedly America's Greatest Medicine for America's Greatest Disease—Catarrh.

Can You Eat?

J. B. Taylor, a prominent merchant of Chriesman, Texas, says: "I could not eat because of a weak stomach, I lost all strength and ran down in weight. All that money could do was done, but all hope of recovery vanished. Hearing of some wonderful cures effected by use of Kodol Dyspepsia Cure, I concluded to try it. The first bottle benefitted me, and after taking four bottles, I am fully restored to my usual strength, weight and health." Kodol Dyspepsia Cure digests what you eat and cures. PENNSYLVANIA DAY.

At The Pennsylvania State College November 18th, 1904.

In connection with the annual observance of Pennsylvania Day, the State College will this year dedicate the library building presented to it by the Hon. Andrew Carnegie, and the occasion is expected to be one of unusual interest.

The exercises will begin in the Auditorium at 9:30 a. m. and proceed in the following order:

1. Professional: College orchestra.

2. Address by Mr. Thos. L. Montgomery, State Librarian, on "Pennsylvania Libraries and Their Relation to Education."

3. Address by the Hon. Frederic W. Fleitz, Deputy Attorney General, on "Pennsylvania."

4. College Glee Club: "The Lost Chord."

5. Informal address by His Excellency, the Governor of the Commonwealth, and Rt. Hon. John Morley, M. P., of England, are expected.

6. "America."

NOTE.—During this portion of the program the lower floor of the auditorium will be occupied by the student body (except the extreme rear) and only the galleries will be open to the public.

Promptly at 12 o'clock a luncheon will be served to specially invited guests of the College in the armory.

The ceremonies connected with the dedication of the Carnegie Library will begin in the library building promptly at 2 o'clock p. m., and proceed in the following order:

1. Address of Presentation by the Hon. Andrew Carnegie.

2. Acceptance on behalf of the College by Gen. James A. Beaver, president of Board of Trustees and transfer of the custody to the president of the College.

3. Acceptance of the trust and words of dedication by the president of the College: Presentations of resolutions to Mr. Carnegie.

NOTE.—During this portion of the program, the public will be admitted to the gallery floor of the library building only.

3 to 4 p. m. military drill and review of the Cadet battalion by His Excellency, the Governor, and Major General, commanding the National Guard of Pennsylvania.

4 to 5 p. m., in the auditorium, address and presentation of rewards by Major General Miller, and brief addresses by other guests.

1. All college buildings will open to visitors from 11:20 to 2 p. m.

A committee of the alumni of the college will provide hotel accommodations for guests of the college at Bellefonte, on arrival of trains in the evening of Monday, November 17th. For all such cases, it is requested that application be made in advance to Professor L. E. Reber, State College, Pa.

At 8 p. m. the Senior class will give a reception in the armory in connection with the annual Thanksgiving assembly.

One of Many.

H. A. Tisdale, of Summerton, S. C., suffered for twenty years with the piles. Specialists were employed and many remedies used but relief and permanent good was found only in the use of De Witt's Witch Hazel Salve. This is only one of the many, many cures that have been effected by this wonderful remedy. In buying Witch Hazel Salve it is only necessary to see that you get the genuine DeWitt's, made by E. C. DeWitt & Co. in Chicago, and a cure is certain. DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve cures all kinds of piles, cuts, burns, bruises, eczema, tetter, ring-worm, skin diseases, etc. Sold by Green's Pharmacy.

A New Pipe Organ Dedicated.

The Methodist of Philipsburg are about the happiest people in town, due to the success which on Sunday Nov. 4 attended the dedication of the handsome new pipe organ just installed, the securing of which was made possible through the generosity of Andrew Carnegie, who gave $1250, or one half the cost of the same, and the cleaning up of the old indebtedness of the church, amounting to about $1200. Some improvements and changes made necessary by virtue of the installation of the organ, added an expense of between $300 and $400, which made a total to be raised of about $3,000. It was the earnest desire of the pastor, Rev. George D. Penepacker, D. D., and many of the members, that the old debt be paid and the present occasion was believed to be the most propitious time to raise the money. They planned wisely, as the outcome clearly shows. The church, morning and evening, was packed with an interested and appreciative audience, who gave most cheerfully and liberally, the best of feeling prevailing throughout the exercises.

Rev. C. N. Simms, D. D., ex-Chancellor of Syracuse University, and the present successful and beloved pastor of the First Methodist church, Syracuse, N. Y., had charged of the finances, and with the greatest ease ever known in Philipsburg Methodism, raised the sum of $3000, the whole amount required.—Journal.

A NARROW ESCAPE.

W. H. Smith, Harry Mensch and John Haines' Novel Experience.

The United Telephone Co., of Bellefonte, have a work room and warehouse in the alley near Jacob Kniesly's blacksmith shop where they repair telephones. Heavy paper was tacked up all around the room to keep out the cold and the room was full of tools and telephones.

Last Monday evening Manager W. H. Smith and two employes, Harry Mensch and John Haines, were in this work room repairing a telephone when a gasolene lamp which they were using to melt soder exploded, throwing gasolene all around the room. In a moment the entire room was all ablaze, the men being in the midst of it. In the south west corner of the building was some kind of an explosive that cracked like a cannon and blew out the corner of the building. The concussion was so violent that heavy timbers were broken off like a match. All the windows in the room were broken out and for a few moments it was thought that the building would be destroyed by fire. The Undine fire company was soon on the scene but their services were not needed, as the flames were extinguished by the three men. Strange to say not one of the gentlemen was injured but it was a most marvelous escape. Had the flying missile which accompanied the explosion darted to the left instead of the right there is no question that one or two of the men would have been killed.

A Policeman's Testimony.

J. N. Patterson, night policeman of Nashau, Ia., writes, "Last winter I had a bad cold in my lungs and tried at least half a dozen advertised cough medicines and had treatment from two physicians before getting any benefit. A friend recommended Foley's Honey and Tar and two-thirds of a bottle cured me. I consider it the greatest cough and lung medicine in the world. For sale by C. M. Parrish.

Hobbies Are Good.

How often does one hear the expression, "Oh, that is So-and-so's hobby," spoken rather disparagingly. It is the tendency of the average mind to regard a person who has a pronounced enthusiasm as a species of harmless lunatic, rather to be pitied. The truth of the matter is that any one who has any special fad is greatly to be envied, as it probably provides more interest and amusement for its possessor than anything else. Any decided interest in life, whether it is dignified by the name of an occupation or is simply an enthusiasm or even mentioned slightly as a fad, is eminently desirable.

"I have never seen a genuine collector that is not happy when he is allowed by circumstances to gratify his tastes," remarked a student of human nature, "and a bend in that direction should always be encouraged. It is a curious phrase of our humanity that we will work diligently to make provision for our material needs when we are old and quite neglect to store up mental resources that will interest and amuse us until we are called hence."

Hobbies help one to forget sorrow and give us pleasure in the present. They are among the best things in life, promoters of health, peace and happiness.

Physicians Prescribe It.

Many broad minded physicians prescribe Foley's Honey and Tar, as they have never found so safe and reliable a remedy for throat and lung troubles as this great medicine. For sale by C. M. Parrish.

The Christmas Delineator.

The Christmas Delineator, with its message of good cheer and helpfulness, will be welcomed in every home. The fashion pages are usually attractive, illustrating and describing the very latest modes in a way to make their construction during the busy festive season a pleasure instead of a task, and the literary and pictorial features are of rare excellence. A selection of Love Songs from the Wagner Operas, rendered into English by Richard de Gallienne and beautifully illustrated in colors by J. C. Leyendecker, occupies a prominent place, and a chapter in the Composers' Series, relating the "Romance of Wagner" and Cosima, is an interesting subject to the lyrics. A very clever paper, entitled "The Court Circles of the Republic, describes some unique phases of Washington social life is from an unnamed contributor, who is said to write from the inner circles of society. There are short stories from the pens of F. Hopkinson Smith, Robert Grant, Alice Brown, Mary Stewart Cutting and Elmore Elliott Peake and such interesting writers as Julia Magruder, L. Frank Baum and Grace MacGowan Cooke hold the attention of the children. Many Christmas suggestions are given in needlework and the Cookery pages are redolent of the Christmas feast. In addition there are the regular departments of the magazine, with many special articles on topics relating to woman's interests within and without the home.

DON'T BE WOOZY!

NERO

was a most crafty Roman, but he made one mistake.

He committed suicide at the wrong end of his life,

He should have shuffled off at the beginning.

A great many business men today are committing business suicide at the wrong end of their lives

They mean well at the start, but drift away from their good resolutions.

One means of a long and prosperous business life is to have good printing and stationery.

A business is judged by its reading matter.

THE REPUBLICAN

Job Printing Department is prepared to furnish the best.

Cost is a secondary consideration when you consider the quality—sufficient it is to say our prices are so reasonable that it would be a waste of shoe leather to look further.

It has a distinctiveness all its own—a something that distinguishes it from the common trash of the ordinary shop.

Again we say:

"Don't be Woozy."

Think it over and for your next order, remember the Republican Job Printing Department.

BRIEF ENTION

Short Items of Local Interest Gathered By The Way Side

—The Y. M. C. A. has scheduled a first-class moving picture entertainment for Dec. 7th and 8th, to be given in Garman's opera house.

—The Bellefonte choral society is preparing to begin practicing for a concert which they propose to give about the beginning of the year.

—Rev. David J. Davis is holding a very successfully protracted meeting at Valley View. He was assisted Monday evening by Rev. A. Davidson of Bellefonte

—August Frank, a Civil war veteran living in South Philipsburg, stepped in the way of a moving locomotive last Tuesday evening, losing his left arm and leg.

—Porter B. Burket, of Stormstown, and Miss Anna R. Patton were quietly married at the home of Conrad C. Krepley and family, in Altoona, Thursday evening.

—John Brachbill of Williamsport, was here during the past week and moved his mother and sister to Williamsport. John is a regular letter carrier at the Williamsport Post office.

—The many friends of Mrs. Laurie, wife of Rev. Dr. Laurie, will be glad to learn that she is fast improving from her late serious illness and is able to sit up for a few hours each day.

—Dr. J. J. Kilpatrick will move into Mrs. Orbison's house on Curtin street, which is being vacated by L. B. Hindman. Dr. Tyron will occupy the Zeller house occupied by Dr. Kilpatrick.

—S. Foster Balentine, nineteen years old, is the owner of the Juniata Herald, published at Mifflintown, one of the most important newspapers in Juniata county. He is probably the youngest editor in the State.

—Miss Nan Schofield gave a progressive euchre Wednesday evening in honor of Miss Ida Johnson of Northumberland and Miss Helen Taylor of Columbia, first prize was won by Miss Ida Orris, second prize by Philip Weaver. Elegant refreshments were served during the evening.

—Wednesday Henry Gault, of Bellefonte, strained his back while working at the Y. M. C. A. building, from which he is suffering severe pain. Thursday his younger brother, James Gault, was working on the same building with his brother, Henry, when he fell on the scaffold in something like an epileptic fit and had to be taken home.

—Messrs. W. S. Montgomery, E. H. Ellsworth and J. Edward Horn, citizens of Philipsburg, who recently disposed of the Philipsburg Electric Light plant, which they successfully operated for a number of years, have just closed negotiations by which they become owners of the Troy Electric Light and Power Co's plant at Troy, Bradford county, Pa.

—Jacob S. Bickle is seriously ill at his home in Mill Hall from what is thought to be cancer of the stomach. He was employed in the axe factory at that place. In September he went to the woods and three weeks later came home ill. Mr. Bickle formerly lived in this county and for a time had charge of the Boggs township poor farm. He was a good citizen and has many friends in this section who will be sorry to hear of his ailment.

—Married—Mr. Homer Walker of Pine Grove Mills, and Miss Mabel Corl, of Pine Hall, were married at 2 o'clock Thursday by Rev. C. T. Aikens in the parlor of the Haag Hotel. Miss Sue Corl, a sister of the bride, and Harry Walker, a brother of the groom, were bridesmaid and best man respectively. The bride is the daughter of Israel Corl of Pine Hall, and the groom is a son of A. S. Walker, of the Branch.

—After sawing for sixteen or eighteen years and cutting thousands of acres of timber in the Bear Meadows, the Linden Hall Lumber company, have shut down their mill at that place and are tearing up the dinkey track preparatory to laying it again in the White Bear valley, where the company is carrying on newer operations. The mountain tracts denuded of timber by this company have been sold to the state for a forestry reserve.

—It is reported that one evening last week Michael Eby; of near Woodward, was robbed of a large sum of money. The robbery occurred while the family were sitting in the summer kitchen in the evening after supper and no one was in the house. How much was stolen is not known but that the amount is large there is no doubt for in their haste to escape $1500 were dropped on the stairs. Mr. Eby, it is claimed, has no faith in banks and thinks himself the best custodian of his money with the result that frequent and sometimes successful attempts are made to rob him. There is no clue to the robbers.

—An application has been made for an additional rural mail route covering the country east and south of Salona.

—The Rev. Father Convers will give an address to the "Woman's Auxiliary" in St. John's Episcopal church after the Friday evening service.

—What's the secret of happy, vigorous health? Simply keeping the bowels, the stomach, the liver and kidneys strong and active. Burdock Blood Bitters does it.

—The Fifty-Eight Annual Session of the Centre County teachers institute convened in the Court House at 1:30 Monday. Elsewhere in this issue will be found a list of the Directors, and Teachers throughout the country.

—James Leitzell Jr., of Spring Mills, was very unfortunate last Saturday afternoon. While descending a ladder from a hay loft, the ladder broke, letting him fall to the floor below. His arm was broken midway between the elbow and shoulder.

—On Thursday evening of last week Mr. and Mrs. L. B. Hindman entertained a party of their friends at their home on Curtin street. As they are about to give up their home and board for the winter this was a farewell to their Curtin street friends and others.

—Mrs. Anna Waite, of south Thomas street, Bellefonte, Pa., gave a reception Friday to her youngest son, J. Elward Waite, of East Northfield, Mass., who was married to Miss Mary Hoffman, of Columbia county, Pa., on the 10th, inst. All the brothers and sisters were home except Laura A. Waite, of East Northfield, Mass.

Married—Frank L. Holdeman, of Bellefonte, and Miss Alice W. Gray, of Milesburg, were united in marriage Wednesday evening November 9 at 6 o'clock at the Methodist parsonage at State College by Rev. E. R, Heckman, of that place. The ring ceremony was used. The groom is in the employ of the Howard Creamery Company of this place.

—Mrs. Andrew M. Mott entertained Tuesday evening November 8th. by giving a novel election party. The returns of the election were received as they came in and in the mean time Progressive Euchre was indulged in. Misses Jodie Bauer, Gertrude Taylor and Mary C. Brown won the prizes. There were twelve ladies present and they certainly cheered when the returns came in. A very dainty lunch was served by Mrs. Mott and all had a delightful time.

—Work on the Y. M. C. A. building is being pushed along and the brick work will be completed and ready for the roof the latter part of this week if the weather continues favorable. As all the material for the roof is on the ground and framed up, it will not take long to get the building under roof. Collection of pledges is being made as fast as possible and, since the building is assured, earnest co-operation should be given in this matter.

—Margaret Leslie Rhone, little daughter of Robert Rhone, of 8th Ave. Juniata, died on Thursday morning, Nov. 3rd, at 7 o'clock, aged nine years and four months. She is survived by her father, two sisters, Edna and Catherine; one brother, Chester Dean. Her mother died about a year ago. Services were held at the home Sunday afternoon, Nov. 6th, at 2 o'clock, Interment in Greenwood cemetery. Mr. Rhone was formerly a resident of Coleville, Centre county.

—At the M. E. parsonage in Spring Mills on Tuesday evening, Rev. G. W. McIlnay, pastor of the Methodist church, united in the holy bonds of matrimony Harvey F. Musser and Miss Elizabeth McClintic, both of near Centre Hill. The bride and groom are well and favorably known to many of our readers, and enter upon the pathway of married life with our best wishes. Mr. Musser took this method of celebrating the Democratic victory in Centre county.

—While Mrs. Charles Corl and two other ladies, of Boalsburg, were driving home from Centre Hall Wednesday of last week, their horse fell and broke his leg near the shoulder blade. The accident happened near the home of Samuel Bruss, west of Centre Hall. The animal was killed by Robert Bloom the followigg morning and thus put out of misery. This is the horse that, about eight or ten years ago, was stolen from a hitching post in Centre Hall, driven several hours, and then left stand in the deep snow in front of George Floray's house, along the mountain. The brute's limbs were badly frozen, and left a stiffness in them that caused him to fall occasionally.

—Katherine, relict, of the late Richard McCafferty died Saturday evening at the home of her son-in-law Edward Brown, Jr., on South Allegheny street. The deceased had been a patient sufferer for over a year with a complication of diseases, being bedfast most of the time. She was born in Ireland and was about 75 years of age. All that kind and loving hands could do for her was cheerfully done but to no avail. She is survived by two sons and one daughter, namely Martin, of Pittsburg, James and Mrs. Edward Brown, of Bellefonte the later with whom she made her home. The funeral took place Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock from St. John's Catholic church Rev. P. McArdle officiating. Interment in the Catholic cemetery.

—Charles R Rine is confined to his home by a serious attack of heart trouble.

Lost—A pair of Lady's eye glasses. The finder will please return to this office.

—Leave your orders at the Creamery Store for your Thanksgiving turkey—live or dressed.

—A revival meeting started Sunday evening in the Evangelical church. The pastor Rev. Cox in charge.

—The new capitol at Harrisburg is to be finished in time for the next Legislature.

—Dr. George A. Beck, the well known Flemington physician dropped dead at 2.30 Monday afternoon, while in the post-office at Flemington.

—Next Sunday morning at 10.30 the annual Home Mission Day service will be held in St. John's Reformed church. The Sunday school and congregation will unite in this service.

—Alice the bright little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Shilling of West Beaver street slipped on that thoroughfare Sunday afternoon and broke both bones in her right leg between the ankle and the knee.

—D. M. Morris, the well-known Logan-ton merchant, was taken suddenly ill Friday night, which resulted in convulsions and a semi-conscious condition in which he lingered until he passed away Sunday morning.

—We are selling at 40c per gallon the finest all sugar syrup that has ever been sold in Bellefonte at that price. Other grades on about the same basis. Maple sugar and maple syrup. Saratoga potato chips. Sechler & Co.

—The postoffice of West Moshannon was burglarized a few nights ago, but we have not heard the amount of loss. A quantity of merchandise was taken from the store in which the post office is located. There is no clue to the robbers.

—Mr. Jacob H. Weaver of Hublersburg, Penns., and Miss Maud E. Shamp of Jacksonville were united in marriage Friday evening Nov. 11, at the parsonage of the United Ev. Church, of Bellefonte by Rev. W. B. Cox. May long life and happiness be theirs.

—A private dance was given in Scott's bazaar Friday night by a party of young ladies in honor of the Misses Daisy Barnes, Margaret woods and Evelyn Showers, of Bellefonte. About fifteen couples were present and all had a good time. The Germania orchestra supplied the music.—L. H. Democrat.

—J. H. B. Hartman, of Millheim and Mrs. Sarah E. Musser of Penn Hall, stole a march on their friends by quietly slipping off to Williamsport where on Sunday evening they were united in marriage at the home of Soloman Homan in Cherry street, Rev. L. L. Lohr, officiating.

—A large audience greeted "The Strollers" at the opera house Monday night. "The Strollers" is a pretty three-act comic opera, replete with tuneful lyrics and stirring ensembles. The company as a whole is one of unusual ability and stronger than the "Miss Bob White company that appeared here last season under the same management, that of Nixon and Zimmerman, Among the best musical numbers were "Good-bye, Little Girl, Good-Bye," "Teasing," "Panta" and "Back, Back to Baltimore." The singers were compelled to respond repeatedly to encores.

—Don't forget the dedication of the Carnegie Library at State College Pennsylvania Day, Friday Nov. 18. Mr. Andrew Carnegie, Mr. Chas. M. Schwab, Gov. Pennypacker and Rt. Hon. John Morley M. P. of England; and other distinguished men will be present. For this occasion the Bellefonte Central R. R. Company will run special trains as follows: Leave Bellefonte at 8:00 a. m. Fare round trip 75 cents. For the afternoon Dedication exercises and Cadet drill, train will leave Bellefonte at 12:45 p. m. Fare round trid 50 cents. Returning by special at 4.45 p. m. or regular trains 1.15 and 5.30 p. m.

Some Old Teachers.

Looking over the papers in an old estate we find that between the years 1811 and 1816, Clem Whitehill, Samuel Johnston, Samuel McKee and J. M. McCullough were school teachers in what is now College Township. The school house where these men taught stood below the present factory at Houserville, and was a log structure. It was built by old Jacob Houser and there his sons, daughters and grand-sons and grand-daughters learned the three R's. Who preceded these men in their profession there is not now known. It is a matter of historical interest to be able to resurrect these names from the grave of oblivion, from the days of before the present school system.

"How Can Things be on the Level When the World is Round."

It is the name of a very popular motto song and chorus which is now being sung with immense success everywhere in the best theatres in the land.

CHORUS.

How can things be on the level, when the world is round
If everything was level, nothing crooked could be found.
Just turn it over and find the argument is sound
How can things be on the level, when the world is round.
